Derivational Relations - Word Hunt 1 Review of Prefixes

My family and I moved to a new house when I was in fifth grade. My reaction to the news wasn't the best, since I had to change schools. This was unplanned, but my Mom had gotten a new job and there was no arguing with the change. My Mom and Dad tried to reassure me that I would be able to adjust, but I was unable to reform my thoughts. When moving day came, I was all packed and ready to load the truck. I had unglued all of my posters from the wall, and collected my unread magazines from under my bed. As I carried the boxes downstairs, it was as if everything that was unattached to the floors of the house was gone! All moved into the moving truck and on its way to a new home.

After we unpacked the boxes into the new house, it was time to start reinstalling all of our things. The TV had to be reattached to the wall, the computer set up in a new location. When I got up to my new room it was chaos and disorder. This space was different than my old room. I had to reconsider the location of my bed, dresser, and personal belongings. It was hard to begin unpacking. I felt like there were millions of boxes with all of my things misplaced in them! I wanted to discontinue unpacking and pretend we were going back to our old house, but I knew that wasn't true. I continued setting up my room and getting ready for my first day at my new school. I knew it wasn't the end of the world - but I certainly wasn't excited for this new change in my life!
